THE ELECTION

The election is passed, and we give below the returns as far as received. We shall probably be able to-morrow to give sufficient returns to decide the result.

We have not time to-day to go fully into the history of the campaign in Penobscot. The result shows what money and intrigue can accomplish. The Whigs have thrown 4753 votes, which is an increase of nearly 500 votes from last year, and is a MAJORITY OF THE LEGAL VOTERS IN THIS COUNTY. The Locos have thrown a vote that will astonish all who do not know the amount of money they have expended in this election. By a systematic plan for procuring voters through false swearing and by buying up every voter which money could tempt, and by a general course of double voting, the most appalling consequences are sure to follow. In our county are hundreds of honest men, thrown out of employ by the ruinous measures of the administration, who have been deceived by the false representations and by offers of employment, and the application of so much money as was wanted, the returns show a state of votes such as no reasonable mind could have one week ago conceived. The inquiry will be made, how has this result been obtained? We answer by MONEY.

"Mains must be carried if it costs half a million," and money in abundance came. Voters were hired and put into towns where their votes would tell to the best advantage. Voters were brought here to vote who had removed from the State, and all that intrigue and money could do has been attempted.

Let the Whigs of Penobscot County stand firm. They have a majority of the legal voters in the County, and they have done nobly in the present struggle. They would not now part with the feeling of proud satisfaction of having maintained their integrity and their honor for all the boasted gain their opponents have obtained through dishonorable means at which every honest man revolts.

The following is the result of the election in this city yesterday

Table with 4 columns: Ward, 1838, 1837, and a final column. Rows include Kent, Fairfield, Kent, Parks, and various numbered wards.

THE NEEDLE.

This is the title of a new political paper issued from the office of the Boston Courier. It is intended to support the good Whig cause, and if the first number be a specimen of what its future numbers are to be, it will prove an efficient aid to that cause. The editor states that "he means the title of the paper shall be significant, that he shall support the good cause totis viribus, and make stinging work with the whole troop of Tories, Locos, Levelers, sham patriots, and public plunderers, &c., that he shall expose the knavery and impudence of those imbecile patriots who, by dint of crying out "democracy," and "democracy," and meaning only themselves, have succeeded in getting into office, where gorged with power and plunder; they sit laughing at the simplicity of the dupes who lifted them to their ill-gotten seats, that he shall point out in its true colors the reckless profligacy of those desperadoes and anarchists, who happening to be hindmost in the scramble for office, have come short of their share of the public plunder, and are now ready to pluck up society by the roots, in the hope of filling their pockets, that he shall endeavor to show the actual degree of wisdom with which this blessed land has been governed since General Jackson came into office, and comment upon the beautiful system of reform by which he turned all honest men out of office and replaced them by knaves and swindlers, who have squandered and run away with millions of the public money," &c. &c.

The Albany Daily Advertiser came to us yesterday in an entire new dress. We like the editor's ideas in regard to the support the Whig press should receive from that class whose more immediate interests it advocates. It is true, that those who aid in supporting the press by a liberal course of advertising reap the greatest advantage from it, not only in an increase of business, but in making their papers more valuable. The Advertiser says:

Our Commercial readers are probably aware that the life-blood of a daily paper is its advertising patronage. Without that substantial support it must inevitably go down. We have to thank many tried and steady friends for their favors continued for a long course of years. But we take leave to remind some of our more youthful mercantile friends, that we have space for them too. The Whig papers are the uniform and ardent supporters of the merchants, especially under the heavy blows aimed at their interests by the General Government. Ought not the Whig merchants in turn, to uphold with a liberal hand, the journals of their political faith? In no way can this be done so efficiently as by advertising freely, and in no way more justly, for the advantage is mutual, both parties being benefited by it. In proportion as merchants send a hearty support to a paper, so will the proprietors have the means to afford an increased amount of valuable commercial intelligence. The more a paper makes, the more money is expended in improving it.

MURDER AT THE SPRINGS. The Baltimore Chronicle gives the following account of a most atrocious murder committed at the Virginia Springs.

MURDER AT THE SPRINGS. As the guests of the White Sulphur Springs were leaving the dining room, some time about the middle of August, a man was observed coming hurriedly across the lawn, from the cabins, towards the stage office, and at the same time men on horse back were galloping in hot haste from the Warren Spring road to the same point. In a few moments these last announced that a man had been shot at Surrer's tavern, about a quarter of a mile off, and that dead stood in imminent need of a physician. They indicated the man crossing the lawn as the murderer. While a part of the guests went off for a physician, others hastened to arrest the armed person, a man, under the middle size, rather compactly built, with good features, and a florid complexion, and who was at once recognized as Watkins, the bar keeper at Surrer's. He did not hesitate to say that he had shot Pitman, a person from Augusta county who was a horse dealer, well known at the Springs, for calling him "a d d liar." Watkins made no resistance to his arrest, stating that he came to the Springs voluntarily to contend with competition. The gentleman who arrested him tied him behind his back, and took from him a long-barreled, eight inch barrel, with a silver band, and a small box, which was an Arkansas With-pick, and the Bowie knife. He was taken to the jail by the "d d men" and to the State Prison, where he was examined by a jury of twelve.

...the only man who seemed in the least worthy of notice, who was in the color most probably more like a dead raven than Pitman himself, and who vociferated rather more than he acted on the occasion.

The examination was suspended before the magistrate, until the issue of Pitman's wounds could be ascertained, and Watkins in the meanwhile was confined in a neighboring tavern. The following morning, about 8 o'clock, Pitman died, having bled to death internally, and after suffering the most awful agonies of pain from the time he was shot until his death. As soon as this fact was known, the examination of Watkins was resumed, and as far as the testimony went, the history of his case appeared to be this:

Pitman and Watkins had an altercation about some unimportant matter in the course of which Pitman had called Watkins a damned liar. They continued the altercation, according to one statement, while Pitman walked, Watkins following, into the dining room. Here Pitman sat down to the table, and Watkins still standing, demanded from Pitman why he had used the above epithet. Pitman answered carelessly, and finally, when Watkins said he must either retract or repeat the offensive term, told him he would do neither, nor trouble himself more about the matter. Whereupon Watkins drew the pistol from under his coat and shot him as he sat. The ball, which was not larger than a No. 1 buck shot, and wrapped in tow struck a quarter dollar in the waistcoat pocket and, ringing downwards toward the backbone, wounded the great vein there, and caused the death of the individual. When struck, Pitman rose and staggered to the wall, he was then supported to a chamber, where he remained until he died. Watkins drew a knife and walked unimpeded from the house, and reached the springs as above mentioned.

Another version of the story is, that after Pitman had called Watkins a liar, the latter left him, and armed himself, though on this point the testimony was not clear.

The examination before the magistrate, in which Watkins was assisted by able counsel resulted in his commitment on a charge of murder in the first degree.

A FAMILY OF SAVAGES IN WEST JERSEY. SUNDAY DEATH. On Saturday morning, last the body of Mr. Jeremiah Bacon was found lying near a well on his farm, at some distance from the house in which he lived. It is supposed he fell dead while in the act of pumping some water, as one of his hands still rested on the pump handle.

The subject of this notice was, we believe, one of the oldest native inhabitants in Hope well township, and with another brother and two sisters he resided on the estate left them by their father ever since his death, which occurred many years ago, very much in the same way as the sons he being found dead in the field. The management of the affairs devolved entirely upon the deceased and a sister who died last Spring. And although they lived more like savages than civilized people, yet the love of money was strong with them, and the only pleasure they seemed capable of enjoying, was that of hoarding up their earnings.

The brother and sister now living are incapable of taking care of themselves, for twenty years or more they have been suffering to wander in the woods in a state of imbecility, and whenever the cravings of appetite impelled, would return to the house, satisfy his hunger, and in the morning flee again to his hiding place, being seldom if ever seen by the nearest neighbors. The overseer of the township finding it necessary, since the death of Jeremiah, to take charge of them and their effects, he was pursued and taken. He was thinly covered with hair, some what resembling the coat of a very old opossum, and stoutly resisted every effort to clothe him, and for several days refused to eat any thing.

On examining their miserable abode, which was scarcely fit for decent civility to live in, there was found in an old chest, almost without lid or lock, TWELVE HUNDRED DOLLARS in SPECIE, two hundred in gold bank paper, besides a quantity of bank notes converted into nice vests, which were so effectually destroyed as not to be able to estimate their denominations or value, and several small sums of money have since been found on the premises, and doubtless more remains hidden that will never be discovered. Since the suspension of specie payments they have sold nothing, having an utter abhorrence of shin plasters. The cattle and hogs on the farm have been two or three times fattened in the cellar were found several hogheads of wheat nearly destroyed by the rats, which were numerous and so venomous as almost to dispute the possession with the owners. Their property will probably amount to six or seven thousand dollars, and the only grief manifested by the survivors was, that their money was taken from them.

Such is an imperfect sketch of this wonderful family, which although living within two miles of the village of Bridgeton, seems to be as unknown as if their residence had been in Iowa. A parallel circumstance in all its parts we think cannot be found in the United States.

Bridgeton [West Jersey] Chronicle.

FROM ENGLAND. By the packet ship South America, at New York. We have received our files of London papers to Aug. 2d, and Liverpool to the 3d. A variety of extracts are subjoined.

The celebration of the three days, at Paris, passed with the usual ceremonies, but without any remarkable eclat, and without any serious disturbances. The Duchess of Wurttemberg, the daughter of the King of France, has given birth to a prince. The Emperor of Russia, with his consort, arrived at Leipsitz July 19. Nothing further had been developed in relation to the discussions on the Belgian question. In Spain nothing important had occurred. The long expected movement of the Queen's troops, upon Estella, was still expected.

The Disputed Boundary. In the House of Commons, July 31st, Capt. Boldero wished to ask the noble lord, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, whether Commissioners of the part of Great Britain and America were acting together with reference to the settlement of the North American boundary question. He had read with great pleasure the correspondence of the noble lord on this subject, which fully proved, in his opinion, that the State of Maine had no claim to it. He struck him, that if America appointed commissioners to survey the grounds, we ought also to appoint persons with the same object. It was some time since the King of Holland had given a decision, which though not very favorable to us, was acquiesced in, in consideration of the honor of the country was at stake, but it was rejected by the Americans.

Lord Palmerston said, in reply, that the Hon. and gallant gentleman must have been aware that negotiations were being carried on for the last year or year and a half between the British and American Governments, into the object of which he had not entered. He said that the Government had pointed out jointly by the two Governments, to endeavor by all a survey to trace the line of boundary according to the treaty of 1792. As these negotiations were not yet brought to a

...of course he could not be expected to take any further steps in the present position. It would state in it, that the Central Government had applied on the subject to the Legislature of Maine, and that the latter had passed three resolutions, of which the first was, that in the present state of the question they could not agree to a conventional line of boundary. The third resolution stated that they thought it desirable that a fresh attempt should be made to ascertain, by actual survey, the boundary line, and the two Governments were now in negotiation as to the proper method of appointing such a commission as might be adapted to undertake and execute that survey.

WE have received the Ladies' Companion for September. It is filled with the usual quantity of entertaining matter. This periodical is now under the editorial management of W. W. Snowden Mrs. Ann S. Stephens and Henry F. Harrington, late of the Boston Galaxy.

The following gentlemen, we understand, were yesterday elected to fill vacancies in the Direction of the Bangor Commercial Bank: James B. Fiske, Jacob McGaw, and Wiggins Hill, Esquires.

SPECIE GOVERNMENTS.

France has $100,000,000 of specie. Great Britain has $150,000,000. The United States has $80,000,000. Yet France with more than double the amount of specie owned by Great Britain, has no commerce, no such manufactures, no such political freedom as belongs to Great Britain. France has just five times as much specie as the United States, yet France is not so prosperous in any respect as this country. She has no such great works of improvement as we have, and her people are less enlightened, less liberal and less free than this people.

In France the hard money system of despotism and barbarism prevails, while in the United States the people are springing upward and upward in the scale of national greatness under an admirable credit system. This system the Whigs seek to preserve, the Locos, Foes to destroy [Ohio Journal]

New Jersey Politics. The Whigs held their State Convention at Trenton, on Wednesday last. A great number assembled. The old Congress Ticket was re-nominated by acclamation. Among the Speakers was Mr. Frelinghuysen. New Jersey will give a good report of herself in October.

EMIGRATION. The number of emigrants from the United Kingdom to British America in 1832, was 66,340, in 1833, it was 28,608, in 1834 it was 41,060, in 1835, it was 15,573, and in 1836, it was 34,226. To the United States of America in 1832, 32,980, in 1833, it was 29,225, in 1834 it was 33,074, in 1835, it was 20,720, and in 1836, it was 37,774.

The Railway Herald mentions the following extraordinary incident of a loaded wagon being removed out of a mire. "After a few unavailing pulls by horses and oxen, it was finally pulled out by placing two boxes of Brander's Pills, one under each hind wheel. So the story goes. We can hardly credit it ourselves."

The news from Vermont is highly favorable. The Whig ticket for Governor is probably elected, as was expected, by 5000 majority. The Whigs are in a decided majority in the Legislature and have doubtless elected three out of five Representatives viz. Highland Hall, William Slade, and Horace Everett by overwhelming majorities. In the district now represented by Heman Allen, two Whig candidates were run and there is no choice. Isaac Fletcher, V. B. is re-elected by a few hundred majority in the Montpelier District. Vermont has done nobly. [Mercantile Jour.]

On the 17th of January the birth of FRANKLIN will doubtless be celebrated by the printers and publishers, and by the literati generally, in this country. The year 1839 completes the 200th anniversary of the Introduction of Printing into America.
